STYLE:

- Numbers:
  - ♦ For general amounts in narrative, spell out all unless they're years (e.g., 2000) or specific dates (e.g., November 19, 1986) or are truly awkward. For numerals within proper names (e.g., Route 12), use numerals in both narrative and dialogue.
  - ♦ Dates: Use numerals for day of the month (e.g., April 10), except in speech. Use numerals for years, whether in narrative or speech.
  - ♦ Decades: For decades of life, use words (e.g., thirties, forties, fifties). For decades in twentieth-century time, use words (e.g., sixties) in dialogue and numerals (e.g., 1960s [no apostrophe]) in narration.
  - ♦ Fractions: Use words—open compounds as nouns (e.g., one third of the total) and hyphenated compounds as adjectives (e.g., a three-quarters majority).

Style Sheet for Purgatory Ridge

- ◆ Gun calibers: Use numerals (e.g., .38) in narrative but spell out in dialogue (e.g., “I’ve got my thirty-eight . . .”).
- ◆ Measurements: Hyphenate amounts and units of measure that work together as compound adjectives: two-hour flight, twenty-year cycle.
- ◆ Ordinals: Spell out all ordinals.
- ◆ Percent: Spell out the percentage and the word percent.
- ◆ Time of day: Spell out the time of day in text and in narrative (e.g., four o’clock, twelve fifty-three), but stet numerals if they appear in extracts.
- Clauses: Differentiate between that and which. In restrictive clauses, use that. In non-restrictive clauses, use , which. Differentiate between other kinds of restrictive clauses (no comma) and nonrestrictive clauses (comma) also.
- Colon: Capitalize the first word after a colon only if the word begins a complete sentence.
- Comma:
  - ◆ Use the serial comma.
  - ◆ After words that are usually dialogue tags but that aren’t acting as tags, omit the comma (e.g., The sign said DETECTIVE AGENCY). When dialogue serves as a part of speech (e.g., object of verb or subject of sentence), omit the comma after the verb that precedes the dialogue, even if the verb is what would normally be called a dialogue tag (per Words into Type, p. 199).
  - ◆ Use commas around too, when it appears in the middle of a sentence, when it means also; when it appears at the end of a sentence and has the same meaning, precede it with a comma.
  - ◆ For dimensions, no comma should separate parts of compound dimensions (e.g., use no comma to separate the units of time in “. . . six feet two inches tall . . .”), per Words into Type, p. 203.
  - ◆ Do not use a comma before such surname suffixes as Jr., III, and IV, per Chicago Manual, 8.55.
- Compounds:
  - ◆ Compound nouns formed from a noun and a gerund, from two nouns, or from a noun and an adjective will be spelled as two words (e.g., decision making, master builder; but vice-president).
  - ◆ Compound nouns that are capitalized will not be hyphenated (e.g., African American, Asian American, Mexican American).
  - ◆ Compound adjectives preceding nouns will be hyphenated only if the meaning would not otherwise be clear (e.g., high school student, but short-term effects, decision-making process, high-risk situation); compound adjectives containing an adverb with the suffix -ly will not be hyphenated (e.g., purely hypothetical case).
  - ◆ An en dash, rather than a hyphen, will be used between compound words to convey a distinction in sense, as when and or to is implied between the two words in the compound (e.g., import–export business, the doctor–patient relationship) or when a hyphen could be ambiguous (e.g., pre–World War II).
- Dialogue: Use only verbs of utterance as dialogue tags; for example, smirked is not a verb of utterance. Use ellipses for speech that trails off; use an em dash for speech that is interrupted.
- Hyphens with prefixes and suffixes: Delete hyphens and close up prefixes to root words unless doing so results in a double consonant or double vowel (but double e in words with the prefix re- are okay; e.g., reeducate) or is likely to result in misunderstanding (e.g., distinguish between recreate and re-create). For the suffix -like, however, delete the hyphen and close up the suffix to root words of one or two syllables but retain the hyphen with root words of any length ending in an l and with root words of three or more syllables, per Chicago, Table 6.1.
- Initials: Personal initials appearing with surnames will carry periods and word spaces (e.g., P. H. Smith). When personal initials are used exclusively (i.e., even for surname), they will appear with no periods or spaces (e.g., FDR). When personal initials are used in place of a first and middle name and no surname is used, they will carry periods and spaces (e.g., P. H.).
- Italics:
  - ◆ Use italics (not all caps) for emphasis.

Style Sheet for Purgatory Ridge

- ◆ Use italics for words as words and letters as letters.
- ◆ Use italics (and no quotation marks) for direct thoughts and for imagined or remembered dialogue that is not spoken aloud by the rememberer.
- ◆ Use italics for names of ships, long musical works (e.g., operas), films, television programs, radio programs, CD titles, and books.
- ◆ Use italics for foreign words not commonly known by speakers of English. However, per Chicago, 6.66, foreign proper names (personal names or nicknames and place names) are not italicized.
- Letters as shapes: Set such letters as capital sans serif letters (e.g., . . . marked the spot on the map with an X . . .).
- Newspaper headlines: In narrative, mark for all small caps (no full caps, no quotes, no italics); in dialogue, use quotation marks and normal headline-style capitalization.
- Possessives:
  - ◆ Use 's for the possessive of singular names ending in sibilants (e.g., Bob Williams's home).
  - ◆ Use an apostrophe alone for the possessive of plural names (e.g., the Pantulianos' home).
- Prepositions: Capitalize prepositions of five or more letters in heads.
- Roman and quotation marks: Use roman type and quotation marks for titles of such short works as songs, short stories, and short poems.
- Signs: Set these in all small caps (e.g., the sign said AURORA, MINNESOTA).
- So-called: Do not enclose words/terms following so-called within quotation marks, per Chicago, 6.80.
- Spelling: Use first (preferred) spellings listed in Webster's (e.g., use labeling, not labelling).
- Typography:
  - ◆ When italicizing terms [terms, not dialogue] in text, italicize adjacent commas and periods but not colons, semicolons, or parentheses; italicize adjacent quotation marks only if they are within the term itself.
  - ◆ When italicizing a title of a work (e.g., play, book) or name (e.g., ship), italicize adjacent commas but do not italicize any other punc-uation unless it is part of the work's title or part of the name.

- ◆ For the possessive of an italicized name (e.g., ship), italicize only the name proper and mark the possessive apostrophe and s to be set roman.
